

KNELL IS SOUNDED FOR HOBBLIE SKIRT

M. Philipsborn Shows Successor In the "Hobbie Hat."

No more will sermons be preached or comic rhymes written on the hobbie skirt.

Hobbie skirts are now back numbers for the hobbie hat has arrived, and occupies the center of the stage.

As seen at M. Philipsborn's, where it is the sensation of the military opening being held today, the hobbie hat is wonderfully made, and it takes a pretty young woman, or a courageous old one, to wear it.

The model shown at Philipsborn's is of black velvet, piped around the brim with white satin. A band two inches wide of black and white soutache is brought round the brim an inch and a half above the edge, and forms the only trimming. The hat has all the severity of the hobbie skirt, but is extremely smart.

Other Models Shown.

Conspicuous among many handsome military models at Philipsborn's is a huge black velvet hat of mushroom shape, with coral facing. Around the crown is brought a band of gold lace, surmounted by black seal tipped with coral. A stunning Georgette sailor is of coral silk, veiled in black chiffon, two graceful loops of paradise in black trimming the hat directly in front of the crown.

Shown among the potted ferns, lace veils, and smart hats which form an unusually attractive window display at Philipsborn's is an afternoon hat of purple beaver, which illustrates the popularity this season of the trimming.

Silver lace is brought round its crown, and with this is combined bands of marten fur, which are the distinctive note in the trimming of the hat. A Frenchy touch is given by twists of pink velvet at the bottom of the crown, and by a cluster of pink japonica at the left.

As seen in the hats, gold and silver lace, fur, and wavy plumes constitute the main trimmings this season, while heavier veils are extremely popular as materials for milady's chapeau.

In evening gowns, blouses, suits, and walking and opera coats, the offerings seen at the window of the firm are varied and attractive.

Many Dainty Gowns.

One of the smartest dainty gowns shown has a foundation of black crepe. This is veiled in an overdress of white tulle blue chiffon, heavily studied with cut steel. The yoke and corsage are of black chiffon over silver net, the chiffon veiling a touch of pink satin on the yoke in front.

Another equally beautiful model is of white net spangled with silver and gold, its flounce of white tulle and gold, its flounce of white tulle and gold, its flounce of white tulle and gold.

In costs many distinctive models are seen. Among the novelties is a wrap of white tulle, edged with black and gold braid, and with a plaid blanket belt. A black panne velvet coat has collar of Persian braid, and is lined with black tulle. Gown of seal coats, trimmed with opium fur and lined with pompadour silk, are also shown.

Among the suits there are to be seen dainty models in white, blue, and green, and in the lavender shades, so popular this season. Handsome and elaborate braided models are shown in the newest materials, such as tulle, cloth being of white net embroidered in green and gold. The dressy coat is lined with pompadour silk.

In blouses many novelties are shown, among the most attractive being what is known of the Persian blouse. These are made of a crepe-like material, showing in colors. Another model is of cream net with bold effects of big dots and bordered in Persian colors. Apart from chiffon and net blouses of every description, there is a moving of smart waists for street and tailor wear.

BOY AND WIVES LINE FOR FIGHT

Race War Imminent In Oklahoma Towns Over Shooting of Sheriff.

TULSA, Okla., Oct. 10.—A race war is threatened here and in Dawson, a mining town near here, today, as the result of the shooting and probable fatal wounding of Deputy Sheriff Charles Stanton, white, by one of four negroes whom he had ordered to stop shooting traps.

A sheriff's posse pursued the blacks across the country for eight miles, capturing all four.

A mob gathered, and to avoid a lynching at Dawson that was imminent, Sheriff Newbold spirited the negroes to the county jail here.

The authorities fear an open conflict in the mining town between the whites and the blacks, who have taken sides.
